Centennial—"All Fear of Death Can Be Removed From Christians." Is Pastor E. Hez Swem's subject Sunday night. Centennial Baptist Church, Seventh and Eye streets northeast. A gifted violinist plays at night. The pastor emphasizes the fact that men enjoy easy chairs much more than pews. The 11 a. m. subject is: "The Oldest Churches are Baptist."

The cool brisk air of the mountain and fresh salt spray of the sea breathe through the pages of the Book and the sermons of the pastors. Not less dear are passages heard in country or city church, at the seaside or among the hills. Obedience to the commandment, "Forake not the assembling of yourselves together," will cause us to forget the heat of summer and bear away the burden of the day. "The river of God is full of water and its streams shall be as floods upon the dry ground."

REV. REGINALD ROWLAND,
New York Avenue Presbyterian Church.

Central Presbyterian Church

FIFTEENTH AND IRVING STREETS S. W.

On Fifth street northwest, in the old Columbia Law Building the Central Presbyterian Church was organized on May 31, 1868, by the Rev. A. W. Pitzer.

Various other sites and buildings, numbering among them Third and I streets northwest and Thirteenth and Monroe streets northwest, were used up to October, 1913. In this year the ground was broken for the present church at Fifteenth and Irving streets northwest.

Dr. Pitzer resigned his pastorate in 1906 and was made pastor emeritus. That same year the Rev. James H. Taylor was called to take up Dr. Pitzer's work.

The corner stone of the present edifice was laid by former President Woodrow Wilson. The entire building was completed in May, 1914. The fiftieth anniversary of the organization of the church was celebrated on May 26-31, 1918. A number of prominent clergymen participated in the exercises.

The Central Presbyterian Church has a remarkable record in only having had two pastors in its history. Both of them, Rev. Dr. A. W. Pitzer, pastor emeritus, and Dr. James H. Taylor, the present pastor, are connected with the church. Former President Wilson has attended here since April, 1913.

A large playground is planned by the church. It will be directly adjacent to it and is to be operated in connection with the Sunday School.

This church supports two missionaries on the foreign field, and is helping in the support of the mountain schools at Banner Elk, N. C.; Crossnore, N. C.; Nacoochee, Ga.; The Hollows, Va.; Stuart, Va.; and Claudville, Va.

During the past year the church contributed over $15,000 for the benevolent causes of the church and $27,000 for current expenses and the payment of mortgage indebtedness.

WASHINGTONIANS ATTEND LAYMEN LEAGUE MEETING

Go As Delegates to Unitarian Institute at Isles of Shoals, N. H.

Laurance C. Staples, of 3421 Lowell street, and Remick S. Ferguson, of 653 East Capitol street, have been appointed by the Washington chapter of the Unitarian Laymen's League as delegates to the second annual institute for religious education, to be held at the Isles of Shoals, N. H., from July 23 to August 12. They will be in the company of 260 delegates who have accepted the invitation of the Laymen's League to be present.

One hundred chapters of the league were represented at the 1921 institute, sending 132 delegates. Of this number, seventy-four this year for the first time have accepted teaching positions in the schools of their respective churches. This was the tangible result of an experiment that was based on the faith that most men welcome an opportunity to help children to their best development, but have failed to volunteer for service in church schools because of a lack of personnel interest. The aim of the league is to qualify, without obligating, its members for such service.

The 1922 institute, because of the success of this experiment, will be conducted on a much more ambitious scale. Not only is the enrollment of members and women representatives of the local chapters of the Laymen's League double that of last year, but four of the most prominent figures in the field of religious education have been made members of the faculty. They are: Dr. Theodore G. Soares, head of the department of practical theology in the University of Chicago; William Byron Forbush, Litt. D., of Philadelphia, founder of the international order of the Knights of King Arthur; and gifted children's author, Hilary G. Richardson, of New York, powerful lecturer on the Old Testament; and Dr. Clayton R. Bowen, professor of New Testament interpretation in the Meadville (Pa.) Theological School.

The department of religious education of the American Unitarian Association is again co-operating with the league in the administration of the institute. Dr. William I. Lawrence, secretary of the department, will be dean of the institute, with Dr. Florence Buck, his associate secretary, in charge of the curriculum.

The Laymen's League pays one-half of the tuition, travel and hotel expenses of all chapter delegates. The chapter pays the remainder of the tuition and in the majority of cases a large part if not all of the other expenses of delegates.

Chapters in all the Pacific Coast States, in Utah, Colorado, Texas, Florida, and in Winnipeg and Montreal, are among those which are sending 261 delegates to register at the Isles of Shoals, N. H., from twenty States, the District of Columbia, and Canada.
